

Bah Humbug!

from your friends at TCLCYC

Sorry...no Christmas letter this year. Just before going into mass production, I was contacted by the U.S. Consumer Products Safety Commission (CPSC). It seems that the fonts used in my previous letters have tested positive for lead paint (never mind that many of my letters were never even printed...virtual lead? ...moronic bureaucrats). Man...first the illegal aliens (alleged, mind you) and now this. That's what I get for trying to save a buck in China. Who knew? Now I'm under a court-ordered injunction to cease publication until further notice. I've included a copy of the recall notice so you know that I'm not just trying to get out of writing my stupid and unfortunately annual letter. Good luck getting through 2008 without it (a heart-felt global letter writing campaign to the CPSC would be nice...I'm just saying...).

NEWS from CPSC

U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission

Office of Information and Public Affairs

Washington, DC 20207

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE
November 29, 2007
Release #08-107

Firm's Recall Hotline: (800) 777-4891
CPSC Recall Hotline: (800) 638-2772
CPSC Media Contact: (301) 504-7908

TCLCYC (Tim's Christmas Letter Consulting for the Yule-Tide Challenged) Recalls Christmas Letters Due to Violation of Lead Font Standard

WASHINGTON, D.C. - The U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission, in cooperation with the firm named below, today announced a voluntary recall of the following consumer products. Consumers should stop reading, sharing, or otherwise ingesting these recalled products immediately unless otherwise instructed. However, if you need to be specifically instructed (by a government agency no less) to stop ingesting Christmas letters, you have other issues going on, pal.

Name of Product: Christmas Letters dated 2001, 2002, 2003, 2004, 2005, and 2006 (note that 1992, 1993, 1994, 1995, 1996, 1997, 1998, and 1999 are exempt...TCLCYC claims all known copies were destroyed in a suspicious land typhoon in Nebraska last week).

Units: Uhhh...about 8

Distributor: TCLCYC, Inc., of Aurora, Colorado

Hazard: The TrueType fonts used in the letters contain excessive levels of lead, violating the federal lead font standard.

Incidents/Injuries: None reported. We could not find anyone who would admit to actually owning the dumb things.

Description: The recalled products come in the form of printed letters, CD-ROMs, and a rather curious window-sticker-decal thing (just what was this guy thinking?). Refer below for pictures of the soon to be notorious contraband.

Sold at: Well...this is one of the more curious things about this recall. It seems this poor sucker never actually sold any of his products. Apparently he tried...we have evidence he even begged one year. Rather sad. The guy has gone broke producing what looks to us as some pretty funny stuff...and that's saying something coming from a government agency. Probably why he started outsourcing his font production to China. He just wanted to save a few bucks on production...to keep his company going through the hard times...to keep shoes on his children, food on the table, those comfortable cushions on the dining room chairs, curtains on the windows, carpet on the floor, paint on the walls, hangers in the closet, those really neat electric air fresheners in the outlets in all the rooms, dishwasher detergent in the dishwasher, shingles on the roof, Hillary out of the White House, spray starch on the shirts (not too much), and a collection of Asiago, Banon, Penbryn, Mahon, Havarti, and Velveeta cheese in the refrigerator. Oh the humanity!

Manufactured in: China (we mentioned that above but we still have to fill out these dumb forms the agency produces...but I'm just a lowly government employee, what do I know...can anyone say government waste? Hello?)

Remedy: Consumers who admit to possessing any of these letters should immediately take the recalled letters away from children and small pets alike and contact TCLCYC for instructions on returning the letters to TCLCYC to receive a coupon redeemable for absolutely nothing (dude...the man's broke).

Consumer Contact: For additional information, contact TCLCYC, Inc. at (800) 777-4891 between 8:00 a.m. and 8:01 a.m. MT Monday through Friday, or visit the firm's Web site at http://corporate.tclcy.com/media/corporatenews/2007/stupidrecall/thecpscscaremorons/cn_11_22_07.html

The 2006 TCLCYC Unfortunately Annual Christmas Letter

How do I have one higher year? Do not sure if it truly is worth it to be unfortunately...
 December 18, 2006
 December 19, 2006
 December 20, 2006
 December 21, 2006
 December 22, 2006
 December 23, 2006
 December 24, 2006
 December 25, 2006
 December 26, 2006
 December 27, 2006
 December 28, 2006
 December 29, 2006
 December 30, 2006
 December 31, 2006

The 2005 Unfortunately Annual TCLCYC Christmas Missive

What's inside:
 - Introduction
 - What's Inside
 - What's Outside
 - What's Behind
 - What's Ahead

Click here to start!

From the founder, inspirational leader, and creative genius of the vast TCLCYC (Tim's Christmas Letter Consulting for the Yuletide Challenged) festive-oriented industrial complex...

You are about to be subjected (voluntarily, I might add...after all, that is YOUR hand on the mouse, right?) to yet another in a hopelessly endless series of Christmas Letters.

So, sit back, relax, look over your shoulder, make sure your garage door is closed, and prepare yourself to be utterly unwhelmed with anticipation, helplessness, joy, and the heartbreak of pessimism.

Oh...and click on:
 I can't read my own instruction for self-preservation and common sense. Take me to the next page.

©2006 TCLCYC
 Not Affiliated, Shared, or Related

YOU NEVER ASKED FOR IT BUT YOU GOT IT ANYWAY...

Another TCLCYC Christmas Letter!

Massive Terrorists Plot Hits TCLCYC Corporate World Headquarters!

How do I have one higher year? Do not sure if it truly is worth it to be unfortunately...
 December 18, 2006
 December 19, 2006
 December 20, 2006
 December 21, 2006
 December 22, 2006
 December 23, 2006
 December 24, 2006
 December 25, 2006
 December 26, 2006
 December 27, 2006
 December 28, 2006
 December 29, 2006
 December 30, 2006
 December 31, 2006

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

CONTACT:
 Tim Field
 TCLCYC (bury before the asset sale)
 18375 E. Dunsmuir Place
 Suite 254
 Aurora, CO 80017
 Phone: disconnected
 Fax: disconnected
 Email: cancelled (sorry)
 Web site: deleted (this one hurt the most)

Aurora, CO - December 7, 2006 (a day that will live in infamy). TCLCYC (Tim's Christmas Letter Consulting for the Yuletide Challenged) filed for Chapter 11 bankruptcy protection today. A company spokesman from the law offices of Dewey, Cheatham, and Fierst would not comment on the potential global catastrophic ramifications today's filings have. However, Field (now on holidays) was overhead to have said... "It's a pretty stupid thing to say."

The company itself is not large. It has only one employee, Tim Field. He is (or rather, used to be) the founder, CEO, Chief Information Officer, Vice President of Human Resources (no human resources for that matter), COO, Chief Operating Officer, CTO, Chief Marketing Officer, CIO, Chief Technology Officer, CIO, Chief Contract Officer, CMO, Chief Mobile Officer, JPCO, Chief Fun, Chief Officer, CFO, Chief Financial Officer, and CEO, Chief Regular Employee. Field has spoken as having said that the failure was, in an odd way, a relief as it was getting expensive to print business cards.

Although TCLCYC is a company of one employee, the sudden failure came as a complete surprise to Field in an interview conducted this morning at the local Sears store. He recalled the previous day he had as any other business day. He was just finishing his morning routine when he heard the news. He had a moment of confusion as to what he was doing when he realized he had to leave his home. He had the conversation by himself as all the good things he had done for the company over the years. Then he realized he had an unusual and unfortunated situation over his head. It was then that Field realized that he was about to lay himself off. But, as previously mentioned, it did not come as a complete surprise... being a one-person company it was difficult to keep such information from the NSA. Non-

CHRISTMAS

Presenting... the 2001 Edition of...
"Tim's Unfortunately Annual Christmas Letter Web Site"
 Now featuring the amazing (and patented) "WINDOWED TECHNOLOGY"

Click here to learn more about my recent...
 Copyright 2001 TCLCYC
 Not Affiliated, Shared, or Related

The U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission is charged with protecting the public from reasonable risks of serious injury or death from more than 15,000 types of consumer products under the agency's jurisdiction. Deaths, injuries, and property damage from consumer product incidents cost the nation more than $70 annually. The CPSC is committed to protecting consumers, families, and even people from North Dakota from products that are really really stupid, pose a fire, electrical, or chemical hazard, or those we think are just plain dog-ugly. The CPSC's work to ensure the safety of consumer products - such as Christmas letters, cribs, power tools (especially that Dewalt junk), cigarette lighters, and household chemicals - contributed significantly to the 30 percent decline in the rate of serious deaths and injuries associated with consumer products over the past 23 minutes.

To report a dangerous product or worse... a 2007 edition of TCLCYC's Unfortunately Annual Christmas Letter, call CPSC's hotline at (800) 638-2772 or CPSC's teletypewriter (yes...we have not emerged from the 19th century yet...bet the Democrats would have funded us) at (800) 638-8270, or visit CPSC's web site at www.cpsc.gov/talk.html. To join a CPSC email subscription list, please go to www.cpsc.gov/cannotbelieveyousignedupforthisdrivel/cpsclist.aspx. Consumers can obtain this release and recall information at CPSC's Web site at www.cpsc.gov.